Welcome spring! With the winter chill gone, it is a delight to celebrate all that we have to offer in the Canton Arts District and throughout our regional Canton, Massillon, Akron, and Cleveland arts corridor. From galleries to museums and everywhere in between, it promises to be a fun-filled spring/summer, so get out and enjoy.

I am pleased to report that the most recent exhibition, The Legacy of Ferdinand Brader, was a resounding success in bringing a diverse—and new—audience into the galleries. During its three month run, we hosted more than 2,500 visitors from around Stark County, the Northeast Ohio region, and states beyond. The executive director of Ohio Humanities, one of the exhibition sponsors, attended our closing reception on March 14, and explained to our guests that “the Canton Museum of Art consistently produces remarkable exhibitions rich in content, and very worthy of [our] support.” High praise, indeed, for which we can be proud.

April is quite busy at the Museum. We packed and sent the Braders back to their owners and installed multiple exhibitions, including the 24th Annual High School Art Exhibition and the Canton Artists League Spring Exhibition. Both awarded prizes for their participants (see page 6), and it is an honor to showcase their talents here. The Artists League exhibition remains on view through May 10.

We are also in the midst of the ArtsinStark 2015 Annual Arts Campaign (through May 20). The major arts organizations in Stark County, CMA included, as well as other non-profit arts and education initiatives, receive a portion of operating dollars and grants from our community’s support of ArtsinStark. I encourage you to “support genius” through the arts and make a gift to ArtsinStark. The arts spark innovation, which helps to build our businesses, our city, and our community.

Spring/summer also brings around a focus on the budgeting and strategic planning process. I have been working on refining our vision for the Museum and advancing our mission of being an exciting venue for education and entertainment through the visual arts—to indeed connect art to life in our community and region. We will do this guided by four key principles: innovation, operations excellence, organization development, and financial strength. Our focus will continue to be on advancing your Museum as a regional leader with dynamic exhibitions, outstanding collections, inspiring education programs, and engaging (and collaborative) special events. Plus, we will be reenergizing benefits for our members. There is always something happening at CMA—and we want you to be a part of it.

With that, it is time to welcome the new exhibitions into the galleries. Allied Artists of America provides a truly dazzling celebration of contemporary American art. Gary Erbe’s spectacular trompe l’oeil technique will amaze your senses in The Mystery & Magic. And works from our Permanent Collection invite you to Take A Closer Look. It’s a truly amazing spring/summer lineup, and we are thrilled to present it for you!

Along with that, we have a new series of creative Art Classes for Adults, Teens and Kids starting in May / June—including Summer Art Camp. See the special section on pages 8-10 and get signed up. And remember that gift certificates are perfect for giving the gift of art—whether through classes or a museum membership!

Thank you for your support, and we’ll see you in the galleries.

Stark County High School Art Exhibition Delivers Exciting Works

The 24th Annual Stark County High School Art Exhibition filled the Museum’s lower galleries March 28 - April 12. This exhibition—one of few of its kind in the region—allows aspiring student artists to showcase work in a museum setting.

Museum Director Max Barton said, “This exhibit highlights the amazing talent from our schools each year. I thank our arts educators and students for honoring us with such creativity and innovation. Stark county is truly fortunate.”

Following a panel judging of the artwork (Diane Belfiglio, Adjunct Professor of Art, Walsh University; Elisa Gargarella, Associate Professor of Art Education, The University of Akron; and Heather Haden, Education and Outreach Coordinator, Massillon Museum) an awards ceremony was held on April 7, with financial scholarships awarded for First, Second, and Third Place of $1,000, $600 and $400, respectively. Honorable mention awards were also presented, with winners receiving a scholarship for classes at the Museum.

Education is central to the mission of the Canton Museum of Art. Like most museums nationwide, however, CMA, is facing new challenges in fulfilling the educational focus of its mission as new and increased pressures are placed upon public schools. The past paradigm of creating exciting exhibits that draw educators and their students is drastically changing. Schools are finding it increasingly difficult to fund field trips, and teachers must focus on meeting ever more stringent standards within the classroom, leaving little time for field trips. To continue to be relevant to the changing needs of these educators and their students, CMA is finding opportunities to take the benefits it offers beyond its walls and into the classrooms of Stark County. One such opportunity a ground-breaking, early childhood program that has been operating in Stark County for the last seven years: The Artful Living Program.

CMA is one of eleven partner community and arts organizations bringing the arts into the preschool classrooms through The Artful Living Program. Originated at the Massillon Museum, Artful Living is an early childhood, arts integration and immersion program designed to stimulate creativity and improve academic achievement. Providing experiences in visual art, music, dance, drama, and literacy, Artful Living is impacting over one-thousand preschool children county-wide. Arts lessons are taught by professional artists and must meet Ohio Department of Education Early Learning Standards and reinforce the classroom curriculum. Children experience multiple arts lessons each week for twenty-five weeks during the school year. Program designers chose to address the program to preschools, understanding that the sooner the developing mind is impacted, the greater will be the impact. Preschool is the earliest time in educational programming that the largest number of children can be reached.

Artful Living is a grant-funded program, having achieved twenty-eight grants over its seven-year history, totalling more than $330,000. Major funders for the 2014-15 school year include: the PNC Foundation, Martha Holden Jennings Foundation, Ohio Arts Council, Stark Community Foundation, and ArtsInStark. Artful Living is sponsored by the Massillon Museum, the Stark Educational Service Center, Canton City School District, and Massillon City Schools.

Michele Waalkes, Vicki Boatright, and Libby Doss represent the Canton Museum of Art, teaching visual art in thirty-three classes in Canton City, Plain, Minerva, and Marlington Schools. These three artists are well-known within the arts community of Stark County, and are making a major impact for the future as Arts Providers (teaching artists) with Artful Living.

Membership in The Artful Living Program partnership benefits the Canton Museum of Art by reaching many early learners who will become future members and patrons of the museum. Additional benefits include: stimulating further inter-organizational partnerships, increased outreach resulting in more successful grant opportunities, and helping the museum fulfill its educational mission.

For further information about The Artful Living Program and its vision, mission, and goals, contact: Erica Emerson, Education Manager at the Canton Museum of Art, (330)453-7666; Erica@cantonart.org; or Christopher Craft, Director of The Artful Living Program at the Massillon Museum, (330) 833-4061; ccraft@massillonmuseum.org.

“If you give them the arts, you provide them with a transcendent understanding of life and the world around them. If you give them the arts, you provide them with the full range of human expression.”

Canton Ceramic Artists Guild

24th Annual May Show & Sale

May 1, 4pm - 8pm
May 2, 10am - 2pm

This creative showcase features functional and decorative pottery by the Canton Ceramic Artists Guild. Portions of sales benefit the Canton Museum’s Ceramic Education Program.
Allied Artists of America, Inc. commemorates its centennial with a celebration of contemporary American art on a grand scale—a new exhibition featuring over 60 extraordinary works on view through July 19. The Canton Museum of Art is pleased to welcome Allied Artists, a group rich in breadth and depth of talent to delight exhibition venues with a broad scope of American art.

Allied Artists of America is one of the nation’s premier visual art societies, founded in 1914 in New York City. Allied Artists attracts the best and most celebrated artists in the country representing all genres of oil, water media, pastel, graphics, and sculpture. Their subjects are diverse, and their mediums and techniques are varied from the traditional to contemporary. This vast range of subjects is organized to bring audiences in greater connection with the visual arts in their own lives. This exhibition was the conception of Gary Erbe, president emeritus of Allied Artists of America, who handled every aspect from beginning to end, including the design of the exhibition catalogue.

Erbe’s own magnificent trompe l’œil masterwork is featured in the exhibition, as well as in a solo exhibition adjacent to Allied Artists of America (see page 15).

“The testament of time has assured Allied Artists of America a permanent place in the history of American art societies, as well as unquestionable relevance throughout the art community from coast to coast,” said Erbe. “Allied Artists has touched the lives of thousands over the years. This exhibition celebrates a very special art society and marks the beginning of the next 100 years of continued growth and success.”

“The Allied Artists exhibition brings a great and diverse treasure of American art into the Museum,” said Max Barton, executive director. “It is an outstanding selection of work, and we are thankful to our friend Gary Erbe for bringing this exhibition to Canton. As a Museum that celebrates American art, this exhibition is a shining star.”
The invitational Allied Artists of America exhibition showcases the work of member-artists, whose works have been exhibited around the world and are held in numerous museum and private collections. Among the artists featured include:

- James Toogood is a watercolor artist, teacher, and author who paints the people, places, and things that he encounters in everyday life. He's known for capturing light to create a realistic sense of place through underpainting and layering.

- Mitzura Salgian was born into a family of artists in Romania. Seeking artistic freedom, she established herself in New York and became an American citizen in 1984. Using oils, her style blends the minute detail of the Dutch Old Masters technique with the complex projections drawing from the depth of Surrealism.

- Rae Smith is a master pastel artist and teacher. She has been following her passion for painting most of her life. Smith's work is about emotion, mood, and atmosphere.

- Gabriela Gonzalez Dellosso is a native New Yorker who specializes in realistic, richly detailed oil paintings. There is a strong suggestion of a narrative in her work, and she wants the viewer to realize that things are not always what they appear. Dellosso teaches figure drawing and painting at the National Academy in New York.

- Elizabeth Torak is a leading figurative painter whose work encompasses a broad range of subject matter from still life to figure compositions with mythological reach. “More than anything else, I want my paintings to be alive, to breathe new life and new energy into the air that surrounds them.”

- Thomas Torak is inspired by those familiar everyday objects that surround him. He paints with enthusiasm in a straightforward and direct manner, using minimal brush strokes. Torak considers himself a modern master painter working in the classic tradition.

- Thomas Valenti is the current president of Allied Artists of America, Inc., and is an artist who works seamlessly between watercolors and oils. Hailing from the Bronx, Valenti finds inspiration and motivation in the belief that beauty is everywhere in everything. He is a well-respected artist, teacher, and juror.

The richness and diversity of contemporary American art shines through in this assemblage of talented artists. As a museum committed to the collection and exhibition of American works on paper and ceramics, it is the pleasure of the Canton Museum of Art to showcase the remarkable talent within Allied Artists of America. We wish the treasured society another 100 years of honoring American art and our treasured artists.

THE MYSTERY & MAGIC: The Trompe l’Oeil Vision of Gary T. Erbe

Take a stroll down memory lane by exploring nostalgic and enchanted works in the new exhibition entitled The Mystery & Magic: The Trompe l’Oeil Vision of Gary T. Erbe, on view through July 19. More than 35 pieces will be on display, featuring Erbe’s unique approach to trompe l’oeil painting (translated from French as “trick of the eye”), creating an optical illusion of two-dimensional space that is painted so convincingly that the viewer believes it is three-dimensional.

Rather than painting trompe l’oeil architectural scenes, one of the most popular examples often found on inner-city murals, Erbe brings inanimate objects to life on canvas in a surprisingly realistic manner. Erbe’s self-taught, skillful paintings dazzle with lifelike compositions, constructed of collaged still-life content seemingly suspended before the eye. Erbe coined the term “Levitational Realism” to define his contribution to the trompe l’oeil legacy.

“My interest in trompe l’oeil goes back to the late 1960s when I discovered the 19th-century trompe l’oeil artists Harnett, Peto, and Haberle. For a brief period, I drew inspiration from these artists only to realize I had no desire to be a follower,” said Erbe. “While there are elements of trompe l’oeil in my work, I have less of an interest in fooling the eye in favor of stimulating the mind.”

At first glance, viewers are delighted by the themes in Erbe’s paintings, from his childhood passion for baseball, remembrance of favorite movies, obsession with comic books, to a bygone collection of magician memorabilia. His canvases express the marvel of a simpler time but not without acknowledging life’s darker and more challenging moments also, touching on such themes as greed represented by a skeletal memento mori; the plight of the Native Americans; and the emergence of jazz under the thrall of racism.

Erbe is no stranger to the Canton Museum of Art. In 2013, he presented two of his original paintings for the Museum’s expanding Permanent Collection. 76 Special, a rendering of a plated hot dog skewered by a dollar-bill on a toothpick, was painted in 1975. A much larger creation entitled Vanity and Time, depicting bodybuilder ephemera, was painted in 2010. The artist generously gifted the works in Memory of Muriel Koester. 76 Special is on display for this special exhibition.

Perspectives on Erbe, His Work & The Exhibition
Gary Erbe was born in 1944 in Union City, New Jersey. Unable to attend art school, he worked as an engraver to support himself and his family. In 1967, he discovered trompe l’oeil painting and its masters—and found his artistic voice. His lengthy and impressive career as an artist begins in 1970, with an exhibition of his first trompe l’oeil paintings at the Pace Gallery in Houston, Texas, the culmination of an intensive five-year, self-study process. Since then, Erbe has been featured in solo exhibitions at many of America’s most prestigious art museums and galleries, including The New Jersey State Museum, The Montclair Art Museum, the Grand Gallery of the National Arts Club in New York, The Butler Institute of American Art in Youngstown, Ohio, The Salmagundi Club in New York, the Boca Raton Museum of Art, and The Albuquerque Museum, The James A. Michener Museum, and The New Britain Museum of American Art. His mastery of this meticulous painting technique is further evidenced by a long list of awards and honors and his representation in numerous museum, corporate, and private collections across the country.

Comparisons between Erbe’s work and that of other trompe l’oeil artists past and present is certainly complimentary, but tenuous at best. His masterpieces of “Levitational Realism” easily capture the attention of the spectator by their almost tactile dimensionality, but linger a few moments as your eyes probe the depths of the picture-plane, and soon deeply embedded layers of subtle meaning come to the surface. Choose any certain canvas, and ask yourself why he has brought together this particular assortment of oddments.

Occasionally, Erbe veers from his commitment to trompe l’oeil and “Levitational Realism” to explore other painterly techniques such as actual sculptural creations, deliberate take-offs on Picasso and Braque, and moody desolate winter landscapes. This brief analysis of Erbe’s life work should serve as reminder to every gallery visitor that each Erbe painting requires a generous commitment of time. As with any superior work of art, the viewer of an Erbe painting will be rewarded by a prolonged analysis—first of all the immediate overall visual impact of the piece, next a survey of its content, and finally the elusive search for meaning . . . the subliminal link between spectator and artist. You are invited to linger with each piece, and make your own connection.

TAKE A CLOSER LOOK
Discoveries Inside The Permanent Collection

What's hidden inside the watercolors, oils, and ceramics of the Canton Museum of Art's acclaimed Permanent Collection? This special exhibition invites you to Take A Closer Look—examine the details, discover what's really behind a color or a shape, explore and find little gems inside the art.

During each exhibition change, we assemble a selection of works that highlight the beauty of the Museum's rich collection and complements one of the other major exhibitions on view—in this case, a celebration of contemporary American art in Allied Artists of America. The Museum's Permanent Collection, valued at more than $25 million, features brilliant works from artists such as Winslow Homer, Clyde Singer, Viktor Schreckengost, and many more.

Take A Closer Look invites you to view the works on display in a more detailed, intuitive, and thought provoking manner. Is a “pretty picture” just a pretty picture or something more? What do you see? Guided by the didactic material accompanying each piece, we invite you to draw your own conclusions.

Victor Spinski and Marilyn Levine, two trompe l’oeil ceramic artists, execute amazing precision in fooling the eye. Perhaps it is the way Levine’s Black Shoe Bag has scratches and signs of wear on the leather, or the rust on the nails in the Spinski’s Tool Box I that make these objects seem exactly as they appear. But if you look closely, you will realize your eyes have been deceived—they are indeed ceramic and not leather, paper, or metal.

Julian Stanczak, a favorite artist and friend of the Museum, uses a two dimensional surface to create a 3-D visual experience in Crosscurrents, blending both geometry and color theory. How does Stanczak make this happen? His use of green and blue that moves vertically and horizontally across a dark background creates the illusion of movement. The geometric pattern creates a rhythm across the canvas, enhanced by the precise craftsmanship, and makes the composition explode from the canvas. Enjoy this piece both close up and at a distance to appreciate its impact (and construction).

In The Rocking Chair, an oil work by Priscilla Roberts, the deep colors, tears on the chair and wallpaper, and the open book suggest a tone of abandonment, suggesting it has not been in use as it once was. The light from the window shines over the chair and through the glass lamp that reflects on the group portrait on the wall. By looking closer at this work, what can you tell about the person who once used this room?

May these works from our Collection inspire … intrigue … confuse—and invite you inside to Take A Closer Look.

CARTING CROWDS, EAGER TEAMS, ANXIOUS PLAYERS, THE CRACK OF THE BAT—AND THE SMACK OF A BALL AGAINST LEATHER. VISIONS OF THE “BOYS OF SUMMER” ARE BROUGHT TO MIND, AND REALITY IS SUSPENDED FOR A MOMENT WHEN YOU FIRST GLANCE AT THE CANTON MUSEUM OF ART’S RECENTLY ACQUIRED BASEBALL GLOVE.

You want to reach down and slide it over your hand, as it looks like someone just left it out on the baseball field after a game.

Reality is slow to set in as you further examine the glove, a strong testament to the skill of ceramic artist Richard Newman, who sets a new standard in the art of trompe l’oeil with his stoneware baseball gloves. Until actually touched, each piece appears to be a well-worn leather glove.

Instead, the glove is a complex and careful combination of stoneware clay, iron oxide pigment, alkyd resin, and beeswax stain. Newman works with the clay, creating a basic contour that is then carved, shaped, and detailed (no molds or castings used) to add the illusion of stitching, wrinkles, laces, and knots. When the sculpture is dry, it is kiln fired and then stained to achieve the appearance of leather.

Newman, no longer creates these iconic images; in fact he only created a small number of gloves. The Museum is excited to add this new work to our Permanent Collection—a further celebration of American art, and a national treasure that is baseball.

“When I was young, my baseball glove and I were practically inseparable. Now, as a full-time sculptor, I create leather-like illusions of these sensual, American icons in clay.”

— Richard Newman

We are one of only 10% of museums in the country accredited by this organization.

WHY WE ASK YOU NOT TO TOUCH
Many works of art are very fragile. Unintentional damage may result from gesturing too close to a work of art, and the natural oils on human hands can cause serious damage over time. Please be careful — works of art, like people, are unique and irreplaceable. Help us preserve your Museum’s collection: please do not touch.
